Art Revolution Taipei (A.R.T) 2012

Art Revolution Taipei 2012 (A.R.T. 2012) is the most important platform of art in Taiwan hosting leading and emerging galleries from around the world and launches this year on March 22nd. The exhibition will include cutting-edge paintings, sculptures, drawings, installations, photographs, and prints from established and emerging artists. Hundreds of artists, ranging from the established to the latest generation of emerging figures will be represented in the show's multiple sections. Art Revolution Taipei has intentionally curated the fair around the artists, rather than the gallery-oriented program as seen at other art fairs internationally. The lay out is designed to highlight the artist's works, not the galleries. In May of last year, more than 26,000 art lovers visited and enjoyed A.R.T. 2011, the excitement and anticipation around A.R.T 2012 is even greater making it an experience not to be missed.

Artist in Focus Wang Liang-Yin

Born in Taiwan in 1979, Wang Liang-Yin has captured the eye of the international art world with her paintings of melting desserts as rich metaphors of our innermost emotions and desires. Her still life's of food and in particular decadent desserts are enlarged and distorted on the canvas appearing far from the common desserts that we are familiar with in everyday life. Wang invites the viewers to share these delights with her and to contemplate whether this happiness maintains beyond our sight. Currently on exhibition at Gallery Aki Taipei. It seems only fitting that Gallery Aki Taipei combines home wares, art and a coffee shop, a perfect place to experience Wang's works with all of your senses.

Taiwan's Art Boom

The art market in Taiwan has matured tremendously since the 1980's. Today's Taiwanese collectors, many of whom were brought up with the culture of collecting over the past 30 years are considered to be the some of the most sophisticated collectors in the Chinese community. With a combined wealth of $10.7 trillion Asia's HNWI's have eclipsed the $10.2 trillion held by Europe's wealthy. According to the World Wealth Report published by CapGemini/Merrill Lynch, the exponential growth in the number of millionaires in emerging markets has expanded the global market for investments of passion and the Taiwanese art market is seeing more of this money flow into art. As a result, new galleries are opening their doors in downtown Taipei demonstrating a thriving Contemporary art scene. The best place to browse exhibits of the many new or established artists is the East District of Taipei.
